WORK SURFACES

The Ronda tabletop's 3-ply particleboard core receives a .050" thick high-pressure plastic laminate coating, then a solid hardwood drop edge. Radiused 1/2" at top and bottom to form a smooth semi-bullnose, the edge meets the laminate with a 1/32" v-groove detail.

Work surfaces may be fitted with various electrical options including 3" diameter grommets and steel J-channels for wire maintenance.

PANELS

The end, mid and back panels of study and reference carrels are comprised of grade "A" veneered plywood that is finished with an eased 1/8" hardwood border along the top and bottom edges.

Panels attach to legs (see below) by way of keyhole fasteners.

The tongue-and-groove assembled cabinetry of atlas stands and dictionary stands features grade "A" veneered, 3/4" particleboard side panels. Vertical edges receive a 1/4" solid hardwood border; all edges and corners are radiused.

Ronda shelves are 3/4" veneered plywood or laminate, finished with an eased hardwood band at the front edge (atlas and dictionary stands receive a solid retainer lip/book support rail). Shelves are mounted to panels via hidden keyhole fasteners, while rack configurations attach to tabletops using wood screws.

LEGS AND APRON RAILS

All legs are 2 3/8" x 2 3/8" glued-up solid stock, their vertical edges radiused 1/2" to complement the semi-bullnosed edge of work surfaces. Embedded barrel nuts allow the leg to be mounted to tabletops using epoxy-coated steel corner plates and two threaded machine bolts.

To create a more finished look, Ronda designs offer an apron rail option. Solid hardwood apron rails are fit between the legs and are set back 3/4" behind the external edge of tabletops or panels.
